Authors are encouraged to report errors in their work to be corrected in the literature. Errata are published in the printed journal and linked back to the original manuscript electronically. The Editor-in-Chief makes all decisions on whether errata are published. The journal may choose not to publish errata from authors regarding omissions in authorship and funding sources.

Creating an Erratum

Title Page
- Complete byline, including each author's full name and highest earned academic degree(s); each author's complete affiliation(s), including department(s), institution(s), city, state, and country; the name and complete mailing address, phone number, fax number, and e-mail address of the corresponding author
- Acknowledgment of grant or other financial support, meeting presentation, or assistance with manuscript preparation or data collection
- Conflict of Interest Notification: state explicitly whether any actual or potential conflicts of interest do or do not exist. Provide additional detail, as necessary, in the accompanying cover letter.

References - References must be cited and numbered in consecutive numerical order as they first appear in the text and listed in consecutive numerical (not alphabetical) order in this section. The author is responsible for the accuracy of all references. The following reference style must be used, and the author should also refer to the "Uniform Requirements" and the American Medical Association Manual of Style for other examples and conventions. For authors using EndNote software, *International Journal of"
Reference Style
Author(s) surnames and initials, that is, the names of the first three authors followed by et al.; article title (with subtitle if any), journal abbreviation in italics, year, volume number, part or supplement number, and inclusive page numbers. If the paper has been seen only in abstract form, this should be indicated at the end of the original reference by the addition of the word [Abstract]. Likewise, if the reference is to a volume with a supplement, the supplement number with the abbreviation [Suppl.] should be included. References to books must include the names of the authors, title, edition number, city of publication, publisher, and year. References to chapters in books must include the names of the editors and the chapter title after the name(s) of the author(s) and the book title. Examples of references using the AMA numbered style follow:

Figure - Four-color figures may be submitted, but the author assumes all costs for printing in color if elected. All color figures are published free of charge in the online version of articles. Patient anonymity must be ensured at all times; do not use patient names, initials, hospital numbers, or other identification in the figures or legends. In clinical photographs, identities of patients should be masked or otherwise cropped.

Previously published figures must be accompanied by written permission to reprint from the publisher and authors, with sources cited in the text.

For further details in the preparation of artwork and the types of files that are acceptable for publication, please go to www.elsevier.com/locate/artwork.

Tables - Uploaded in a Word document. Tables should be typed on separate pages. Each table number (1, 2, 3, etc.) should be headed by a brief, specific title. Previously published tables must be accompanied by written permission to reprint from the publisher and authors, with sources cited in the text. Acknowledgments to previously published material should be given in a footnote to the table, and the source should be included in the References section (see...
Permissions). All abbreviations used in the table must be defined in the footnotes. Footnotes should be ordered as they first appear in the table with the following standard symbols: *(asterisk), † (dagger), †† (double dagger), || (parallel mark), ¶ (paragraph symbol), and # (number sign).

Supplemental Materials - This material will be posted on the Journal's website and a footnote will be added to the opening page indicating that "Supplementary material or appendices for this article can be found at www.redjournal.org." It is recommended that authors indicate this Web site in the text where the material is cited and number the material as Table e1 or Figure e1, etc. Appendices should be numbered Appendix eI or eII, etc. Supplementary material will not be typeset or edited by the publisher.
